So What Happens Now?

The school year has come to a close. It's hard to believe that we have completed one year in our new building!

At this time of the year students, parents, and teachers are ready for a break, a break in the routine that takes place over 10 months out of the year. The weather is nice, especially for those that like to spend days outside, vacations/camping trips are being planned, and soon the school will be deserted. So, what happens now?

Did you know it takes 21 days to make something a habit? Keeping in mind that there are good and bad habits it usually takes longer to break a bad one than it does to break a good one. We have been in a routine here at ILS. Both students/families and staff have made a commitment to be here. Now some may argue that school is a habit, the children may not think so either, but it is a strong commitment. If you think about it, it is a 174-day commitment.

You have approximately 79 days of summer vacation (sorry, I had to mention it) where you will enjoy your time away, and I hope each and everyone a safe and relaxing summer. In 79 days you can make good and bad habits. So, what happens now?

Some of you are probably asking now, "OK, where is he going with this?" My point is this, what habits/commitments are you going to break or make this summer? Are you going to continue in the study of God's word? Are you going to continue to serve Him not only on Sunday, but the other six-days of the week?

"Let us not give up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but let us encourage one another on toward love and good deeds."
Hebrews 10:25

The above Bible verse talks about how we should encourage each other with love, but also that we need to continue meeting during the summer with our God and Lord. Isn't it easier to share your faith with other believers?

I encourage you to make good habits this summer to strengthen your relationship with your God and family. You may start Bible devotions in the morning/evening, or attend services at a different church while on vacation. Don't break the good habits from the school year.

So, what happens now? Enjoy your family, enjoy your summer, and remember to include God in your plans this summer, as He has included you in His plans.

*"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord,
"plans to prosper you and not harm you,
plans to give you hope and a future."
Jeremiah 29:11*

Together in Service,

Mark J. L'Heureux
Principal
